eral W. W. Sale to take up with Governor Mann the question of the advisability of requesting the War Department to set a later date for the big encampment of State and national troops at Gettysburg. It is quite possible that the effort will be made.

There has been much dissatisfaction among the Virginia militiamen with the time fixed, which is from July 1 to July 9. The complaint is that at that time many men are busy with casting up half-yearly balances, and with closing the fiscal year, which ends for many concerns on June 30. In some towns the statement has been made that a majority of soldiers will be unable to secure leave of absence for the period decided on.

Asked for Earlier Date.

All these objections were fully considered in advance by the Adjutant-General. He knew that the time would be inconvenient for many of the officers and enlisted men, as it is for him personally, so he asked the War Department to set a date not earlier than July 15. The powers that be in Washington, however, made the selection. It may be said that if this request is not granted, it will be the first failure scored by Virginia during the past few months.
